THE HANDY HOME REMEDT.

There's no secret about the value of BESCHAM'S PILLS as a family medicine. Thousands of families always keep a box handy—and it is the first resort in case of sickness appearing, being the "attick in time" which prevents further trouble, and possibly serious illness. If you have not got a box of in the house, get one now, you never know how soon it may be needed. A dose taken when ailments arise will soon right the wrong and restore you to breath and vigour.

demonstrated his enthusiastic support of the last War Bond Boom Week by devoting his advertising space to the promotion of this form of public investment.

He did so both because he believed in the soundness of the investment and also because he realized that the financial strength of this country is the dominating element by which she must eventually win this war. Britain's financial resources must be stimulated or the vitals of the nation decay.

Let your new Dunlops stand overyour old ones will run you miles more yet. War Bonds command first interest this week. Put forth your biggest financial effort in buying

BLADE Economy

The "Valet" AutoStrop is the only safety razor with a self-contained automatic stropping device, and for this reason its blades last, on an average, four times as long as those of the "no-stropping" type. Probably because of this advantage, and also of the cheapness of "Valet" blades, the public do not always exercise economy in their use. The following hints will enable users to get even more than the two months' service which is claimed as the average life of a single "Valet" AutoStrop blade.

> Don't over-strop-10 seconds daily will keep your blade in the pink of condition. Don't let anything hard touch the blade edge. Hold the blade almost flat against the face. It shaves better, besides lasting longer.

"VALET"

Use no abrasive strop dressing, and keep your strop free from grit.

There is no shortage of "Valet" blades at present, but in view of constantly increasing manufacturing difficulties reasonable judgment and economy should be exercised in their use.

Again in the political negotiations of that year the party misunderstood the temper of Irish Nationalism, and to day at least one half of Nationalist Ireland is in revolt against it. Mr. Redmond cannot be acquitted of blame for the swift decay of his party's fortunes; but his defects of leadership were, at least, honourable defects. They sprang chiefly from an excessive loyalty to his colleagues. He risked dissension at home for the sake of avoiding it within his party's ranks.

Obsessed with faith in mere Parliamentary procedure, the party ignored alike the profound convictions of Irish Unionists and the desire of the younger school of Irish Nationalism for something more inspiring than political "facties" and intrigue. This blindness has been the source of all its misfortunes. It won the Home Rule Bill of 1912 from Mr. Asquith, but underrated wholly the resistance of Irish Unionists to that invasion of their national and Imperial liberties. The Bill became has Act, only to remain inoperative "on the Statute Book," and to-day the party, late-learned in wisdom, is seeking a petter way at the Irish Convention. As the younger school of Nationalism grow more discontented the party's discipline became stricter until it degenerated into tagrany. The Irish Volundears were founded partly as a protest against the vices of the "party pledge." Mr. Redmond was able to control them at first, but failed to make the concessions which might have held their allegiance. When discontent flamed into sedition the party underestimated the danger as foolishly as it had underestimated, the strength of Irish Unionism. We know how it advised Mr. Birrell in the early months of 1916, and we know the results. Again in the political negotiations of that year the party nisundersofold the temper of Irish Nationalism, and did by at least one half of Nationalist Irelland is in revolt against it. W. Red-Heagues. He risked dissension at home for the sake of avoiding it within his party's ranks.

If we judge Mr. Redmond's work severely by the standard of its practical achievement, we shall not find that achievement to be very large or permanent. Perhaps, his chief contribution to Irish prosperity was his co-operation with Sir Horsee Plankett on the Recess Committee which laid the foundations of the Department of Agriculture. What man, however, would care to be judged solely by his solid achievement in the world? Ireland will remember Mr. Redmond as a great figure in Parliament, a stateman whose skill and eloquence maintained the glorious traditions created for her by Burke and Gratian. She will premember him as a man who maintained with equal credit her traditions of courtesy and generosity in public and private affairs. Irishmen of all parties will honour his steadfast loyalty to his private affairs. Irishmen of all parties will honour his steadfast loyalty to his private affairs.
